

EULOGYWELL.

THE WORDS WON'T COME. THE QUESTIONS WILL.

Saying yes to “a few words at the service” is easy. The 1 a.m. blank page titled “For Mom” is not. EulogyWell asks warm questions only you can answer, then shapes those stories into a real eulogy — opening, stories, goodbye — in your voice, ready to print tonight.

WHO IT'S FOR

A grieving family member who was just asked to speak at a funeral that's days away — and is terrified of getting the one chance wrong.

THE ANGLE

Nobody needs a template that sounds like a greeting card. They need their own stories given a shape — so Saturday they're reading her back to the people who loved her.

HOW IT WORKS

01ANSWER THE QUESTIONS

“What did she always say?” “Tell me a moment that was completely her.” Type what only you know.

02GET THE EULOGY

Your answers become a structured draft — about four minutes read aloud, in your voice.

03PRINT IT TONIGHT

Walk up Saturday with steady pages, not improvisation through tears.
