

TOASTGHOST.

EMPTY NOTE TO FINISHED TOAST IN TEN MINUTES.

Five days out, the doc still reads “funny story about Jake???” ToastGhost interviews you about the couple — how they met, the story you tell at the bar — then ghostwrites the toast: an opener, two real laughs, one line that gets the room quiet. Delivery notes included: where to pause, when to look up, when to raise the glass.

WHO IT'S FOR

Best men and maids of honor in week-before panic — one mic, 120 guests, her grandmother in the front row, no do-overs.

THE ANGLE

The alternative is a 1 a.m. template that opens with “Webster’s defines love as...” ToastGhost writes three minutes that sound like you on your best day — nothing you’ll apologize for at brunch.

HOW IT WORKS

01

TAKE THE INTERVIEW

Ten minutes of questions about the couple and the stories only you know.

02

GET THE TOAST

Opener → laugh → laugh → the sweet line → the glass.
Structured, personal, safe.

03

DELIVER IT

Margin notes tell you where to pause, when to look at the couple, when to raise the glass.
